ROMANTIC HISTORY OF DODGE FORTUNE

LARGEST SINGLE TRANSACTION OF CASH IN ALL HISTORY

Financial Institution of New York City Paid $146,000,000 To Eight Members of the Dodge Brothers Family At Detroit, Michigan.

The largest single cash transaction in all history—$146,000,000 which a banking syndicate, headed by Dillon, Read & Co., paid for the ownership of the Dodge Motor Car company, has just recently been closed.

It is one of the romances of modern times, that fortune. Fate dabbling, for a change, with the potentialities of gasoline, cast iron and machined steel, dropped it into the laps of two brothers of undistinguished station.

John F. Dodge and Horace E. Dodge were born in the little community of Niles, Michigan, sons of a machinist and blacksmith, who brought them up to his own trade. For a time they were journeymen mechanics, but, in 1901, they set up their own shop in the city of Detroit, a modest establishment employing only 11 workmen and equipped with secondhand machinery taken in payment of a debt.

To them, in 1902, came one James E. Couzens, now a United States senator and an extremely rich man, then a coal salesman. With him was another equally obscure personage, one Henry Ford.

Ford had thought out and built a gasoline motor which he was convinced would make a "horseless carriage" undergo the pangs of locomotion. Couzens, believing him, had drawn his entire roll from the bank, $400, and borrowed $100 from his sister and $500 from a more prosperous friend.

With that capital they proposed to begin quantity production. They wanted no less than 600 chasses built. They wanted the Dodge brothers to build them in their little shop and take their pay out in stock of the Ford Motor Car company—say, $10,000 worth of it.

The Dodge Brothers, liking the look of the novel engine, built the chasses and took the stock in payment. Out of it, in the succeeding decade and a half, they took something like $10,000,000, according to motor industry legend.

They also quarreled with Mr. Ford—according to the same authority. At any rate, just before the World war, they designed and began to build a motor car of their own. By 1920 they had 18,000 men working for them and had put out something like 1,250,000 automobiles signed with their name, "Dodge Brothers."

That same year the scourge of influenza snuffed out the lives of the two machinist brothers.

The value of each estate was set at that time at close to $37,000,000. By the close of last year, natural increase had lifted these twin valuations to the $45,000,000 level.

And then came Clarence Dillon, with his vision of a still greater mo-

REAL ESTATE DEAL.

The Hartman Realty Co., sold on Thursday of this week the farm of Mrs. George Bowers in Walnut township, consisting of 114 acres to Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Frazier, of Amanda. On the same day the Hartman Realty Co., sold the house and lot in Ringgold belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Frazier to Mrs. George Bowers.

Hamilton, O., May 28—Mayor Howard Kelly today suspended Police Chief Frank W. Clements. Kelly was ordered to take this action by Governor Donahy who has received numerous complaints regarding lax enforcement of the liquor, vice and gambling laws in Hamilton.

torized future and boosted the cash value of the motor company holdings alone to $145,000,000, an addition, almost overnight of $28,000,000 to each patrimony.

The, boldest imaginings of the mythologists of old never led Croesus, or Midas, such a golden dance as fell to the actual lot of the heirs of the two prosaic machinists from Niles, Michigan.

Under the two wills eight principal heirs and legatees are named and the other bequests and annuities with which the estates were burdened are so comparatively small that these eight may be considered, for all practical purposes, the sole heirs.

LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Allen McArthur Died at Home, West Mound Street—Funeral Monday.

Mrs. Teresa McArthur, widow of the late Allen Campbell McArthur died at her home, 293 West Mound street, this morning at 8:15 o'clock.

The deceased had been an invalid for the past five years, but had been in a serious condition for the past five years.

The deceased was born in Portsmouth and was the daughter of William Glenny and Eley Van Voorhes Whitney. She was married to Allen Campbell McArthur at Des Moines, Iowa, November 25, 1886. One daughter, Miss Dorothy Whitney McArthur survives. Her husband died July 6, 1897.

Of her immediate family she leaves two sisters, Misses Isabel O. Whitney and Elsie Glenny Whitney.

The funeral services will be held at her late home Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Floyd E. Logee will officiate. Interment in Forest cemetery.

MOTHER KILLS BABES

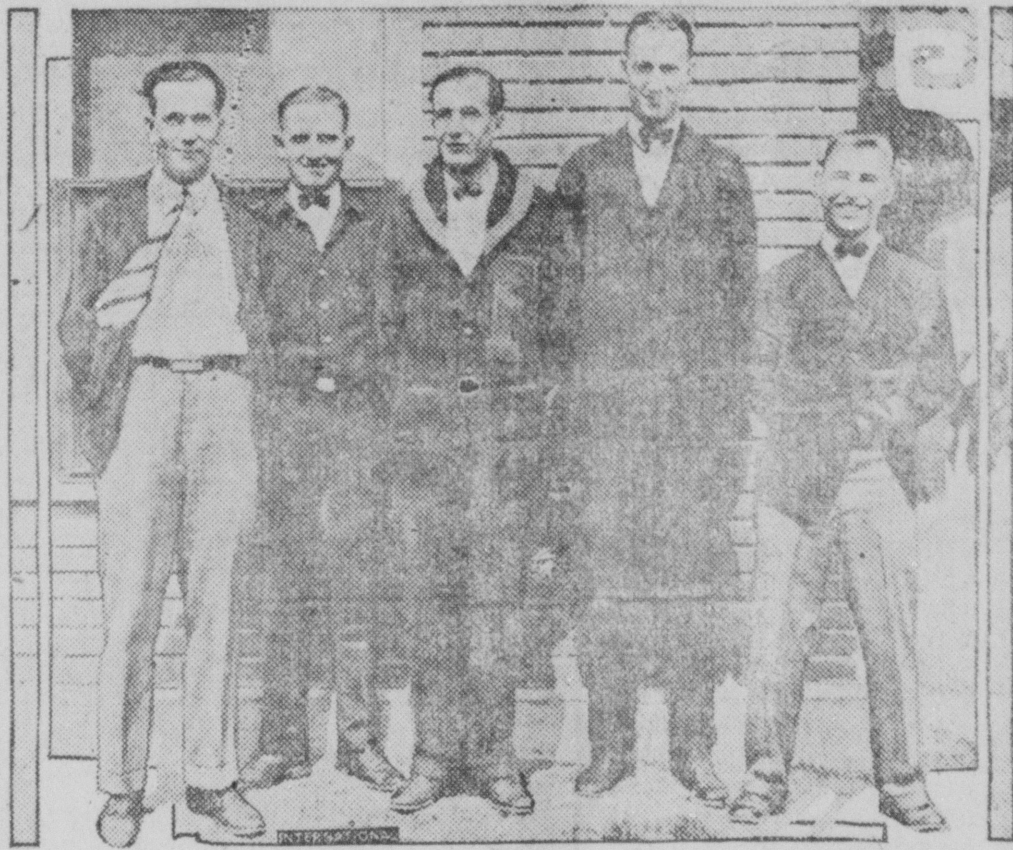

Elizabeth M. King, former Washington girl, in jail at Rockville, Md., charged with killing two babies. She is nineteen and unwed. She confessed killing both of her babies, one a year ago and the other three weeks ago.

CIRCLE DECORATED.

Dr. B. R. Bales, of Triangle farm fame, has donated cosmos, canna and marigold plants for the beautifying of the circle bowl of the dead fountain at the court house. This is a most commendable thing for a public spirited citizen, who has not lost the sense of beauty and it does away with the glaring emptiness of the big bowl.

Exchange Blood for Learning

Left to right are Lee Cornell, Hershel Heath, Buell Hunter, Walter Woods and Harold Beams, students at Fairmount college, Wichita, Kans., who have found a rather extreme means of paying their way through college. Unable to earn enough at odd jobs to carry them along, they decided to sell their blood, being paid $25 a pint, which is half as much as professional blood-sellers command. Their blood has been the means of saving several lives, and also has been used for experimental purposes at the city bacteriological laboratory.

SOCIAL CALENDAR EXHIBIT OF HANDIWORK OF STUDENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Raney and Mr. and Mrs. R. Press Enderlin attended the opening of the Winter Garden Thursday evening at Chillicothe.

Mrs. A. C. Wilkes was hostess to the social session of the Thursday club. Mrs. Harriet Lazenby, of Columbus, was an out of town guest.

Mrs. Richard Weldon attended the social session of the Tuesday club to which Mrs. Lemuel B. James was hostess.

For the pleasure of Mrs. Harold Clarke, of Pittsburg; Mrs. Frank Bennett, Mrs. Howard Moore, Mrs. Charles T. Gilmore and Misses Abbe and Grace Clarke gave a luncheon at the Maranor, Columbus, today.

CIRCLEVILLE BOYS APPLIED FOR TRAINING

Appointment of Colonel Dana T. Merrill, of Fort Thomas, Kentucky, and Lieutenant Colonel Edwin J. Newlen, of Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, to command 6,056 young men from Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia, who will attend the 1925 Citizens' Military Training camps has been announced by Major General Omar Bundy, commanding the Fifth Corps Area at Port Hayes.

Colonel Merrill, who is commanding officer of the Tenth Infantry, has been selected to command the C. M. T. camp at Camp Knox, Kentucky, where 3,000 candidates will be assigned for the period July 1 to 30. Colonel Newlen, of the Eleventh infantry will command the 1,500 Basic and advanced infantry students who will be trained at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, July 3 to August 6.

Pickaway county applications submitted this week contain the names of Norman S. Aronsen, John W. Lowe and Ralph E. Wallace, all of Circleville.

WONDERUL RECORD.

Edward Mason Bowman, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Bowman, 416 South Washington street, is now a junior in high school and has never missed a day nor has he been tardy in ten years. Here's hoping that Edward will keep up his record thru the Circleville high school.

PROMOTION FOR PUPILS OF GRADES

There were sixty-nine pupils promoted from the eighth grade to the high school. Eight others were promoted on the condition that they are able to pass in their work the first month in the high school. If at the end of the tryout period they show that they can do the work of the high school they will be permitted to go in the high school. If they are unable to do it they will be demoted to the eighth grade. Five have failed in the eighth grade and must do the work over again.

Below is given the names of those promoted without condition: Irma Rader, Helen Crist, Kenneth Elm, Ruth Stout, Elberta Knotts, Marie Kellstadt, Arthur Johnson, John Caldwell, Joseph Barnes, John Terry, Ruth Wolf, Frances Jones, Harry Grant, Elliott Parahill, Lucile Carle, Udell Ayres, Eloise Scott, Mary Huffman, George Colville, Alice Delong, Maryvise Pindley, Emmett Barnhart, Martha M. DUKEDOM IS HIS

Sir Edward Seymour, who has at last convinced the house of lords committee on privileges that he is the successor to the dukedom of Somerset. He is a cousin of the late duke, and his claim depended on the legality of the marriage of one of his forebears, Col. Francis Seymour, to a sailor's widow, Leonora Hudson, 138 years ago.

PLANT IDLE.

Owing to an over production, the Sears-Nichols canning factory will not operate at Amanda this year, and no ground has been taken under lease. However plans have already been announced from the Chillicothe headquarters for the operation of the plant next season.

Last year 900 acres were under lease adjacent to Amanda for the growing of sweet corn, tomatoes and peas and the payroll at this plant alone ran close to $60,000.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. West spent the day in Columbus.

UNCLE SAM'S DEAD LETTER POSTOFFICE

"Better Mailing Week" From June 1 to 7—All Asked to Cooperate.

While it is generally accepted that this is not the age of miracles, nevertheless, there are thousands of patrons of the United States mails who take it for granted that Uncle Sam has many wonder workers on his pay roll.

The very fact that there are wizards in the employ of the postoffice department men and women who are uncanny, to say the least, in deciphering illegible hand-writing—has caused no end of trouble and expense to the government as well as to the taxpayer, along with inconvenience in the receipt and delivery of mail matter.

Yet with all this expert handling and careful study of hand-writing on the part of the postal clerks the annual revenue from dead mail matter received by the government amount to approximately $300,000.

Last year, the Dead Letter office received $120,000 from the sale of orphaned packages which could neither be forwarded to the addresses nor returned to the senders because of inadequate addresses. The same office turned into the United States treasury $55,522.96 in cash removed from misdirected letters or found loose in the mails.

Postage stamps were taken from letters or found loose in the mails having a value of $12,165.67, almost double the entire revenue of the postal service in 1789.

Three cent fees collected for the return to senders of letters which could not be delivered totaled $92,007.64.

But this is not half the story. Checks, drafts and money orders, whose owners could not be located, and amounting to $3,546,542.54 finally found a resting place in the Dead Letter office.

For want of correct or complete addresses 21,000,000 letters were deposited in the Dead Letter office, not to speak of 800,000 parcels which had been improperly addressed or wrapped.

Strange to say, this depositing of letters and packages in the mails with incomplete, inadequate or incorrect addresses and wrapping comes in a large majority of cases, from those patrons who are the most liberal contributors to this branch of the United States government.

It has been estimated by postal officials that 200,000,000 pieces of mail are given "directory service" every year which means that employees must take time from the regular handling and dispatching of mail in the endeavor to provide correct addresses for this huge volume of misdirected matter. In New York City, alone, the cost of this service approximates $500 every day in the year and the total amount thru the country is stupendous.

While the revenue from the Dead Letter office is sufficient to keep that branch of the postal service functioning it is not nearly enough to pay the annual bill for support of the "NIXIE."

"A NIXIE" is a letter or parcel so improperly addressed that it can neither be delivered to the addressee nor returned to the sender without special treatment. This special treatment costs the post office department or the taxpayer in the final analysis, approximately $1,740,000 every year.

In order to lift this tremendous burden from the shoulders of the postoffice department and on the pocketbook of the American people, the first week in June has been set aside by Postmaster General New as "Better Mailing Week." An active, nation wide campaign will be conducted during that period for the purpose of impressing on the mailer the necessity from every viewpoint of using more care in the addressing of his mail, not only letters but parcels as well.

"GOOD SHOES FOR LESS"

Charming Individuality Expressed in This Hat

The large hat with brim that narrows at front and rear is one of the pleasing modes of the season. This hat, made of black hair, with black satin trimmings, will appeal to women who love large hats.

Fashions for Brides of Spring and Summer

While most of the new wedding gowns are made with long sleeves, those for an evening wedding are seen with lace sleeves half sleeves, or none. One rarely sees gloves, though a few follow a late Parisian fad in drawing long gloves which wrinkle over a tight sleeve.

A very young bride claims the privilege of wearing something less formal than satin, plain or brocaded. In this type of dress enchanting things have been designed by the most prominent artists. Gowns of sheer material, chiffon, georgette, net, crepe, are all shown among the latest models. Beaded gowns are still very good, and lace is lavishly used.

A one-piece frock of georgette, embroidered in beads, is a thing of clinging loveliness, presented by Paul Caret in one of his most original models for an evening wedding. The skirt has the new slightly lifted line in front, where it is fastened by an ornament of pearls and brilliants, repeated in effect by large motifs of embroidery on the ends of the train, which is formed of three narrow scarfs of satin. The bodice is moderately decollete, the sleeves very short, and long mousquetaire gloves are worn. This bride will wear a crystal-edged veil of tulle covering her face, this fashion still being favored by the conservative.

A revival of the styles of the '60s is seen in some attractive wedding costumes—wide skirt, tight bodice, undersleeves, little lace-trimmed nosegay and all. The later equally quaint style of a skirt ruffled from waist to hem, and short enough to agree with the mode of the moment, has a baby waist and tiny puffed sleeves. This is an engaging little frock for a bride of eighteen.

Enchanting Dinner Gown Departs From Satin, Crepe

An enchanting dinner gown which departs from the fashionable satins and crepes is made of white mouseline de soie all in one piece, and is embroidered with a delicate all-over pattern in pearls, silver and rhinestones. An appearance of drapery is attained with a large motif of the jeweled trimming placed low in front to hold the material slightly into fullness below the line of the hips.

Gold and silver are much used in both black and white. Some of the gowns elaborated in this manner are magnificent. A few are regal, with costly jeweled passementeries overlapping bands of gold and silver, sometimes used merely as a background. Large oriental and fantastic designs are embroidered in silver and gold threads on evening gowns and wraps, giving an effect quite as fanciful and ornate as needlework from the Far East. It is not unusual to see strips of gold embroidered all over in rhinestones and applique in different ways.

Tailored Chiffon Frocks Among Spring Favorites

One of the outstanding phases of the modes of spring is the use of chiffon and similar fabrics in fashions that are distinctly tailored in appearance. The popular little two-piece model that might be said to dominate the styles of the present season has recently appeared in a totally different guise. Trim and tailored in line with its long tight or peasant sleeves and its skirt with an inverted plait in front it retains all the practical qualities of a jersey frock but has a certain femininity about it that is most engaging.

The distinctive feature of these tailored frocks of georgette is that in a number of cases they are fashioned of two thicknesses of the material. This does away with the transparent effect and brings out the becoming quality of the fabric.

Ribbon on Handkerchiefs

Made of crepe de chine in every possible color to harmonize or contrast with the costume, decorative handkerchiefs have two rows of taffeta ribbon picoted in silver at the edge. These are slightly gathered and stitched flat to the handkerchief. Many are two-toned in effect.

EARLY LAYING

Pullets Pay Best Blue Valley Creamery Institute Finds.

The earlier she lays the quicker and longer she pays, says the Blue Valley Creamery Institute in urging Ohio poultry raisers to push pullets to early maturity. Experiments show that the more rapidly a pullet comes into egg production the greater number of eggs she will lay the first year.

The widespread belief that early laying stunts the body growth of the pullet is not borne out by tests, except in the case of a few individuals, according to the Institute. Data compiled recently shows that White Leghorn pullets which matured in less than six months laid 168 eggs during their first laying year, while pullets requiring seven or eight months to mature only laid 146 eggs. Pullets taking 10 months to mature were even slower in egg production, the eggs laid totalling only 93.

TRAINED WILD ANIMAL SHOW TO BE HERE

June 10 is The Time of Big Street Parade and Exhibition.

Curiosity and anticipation at home and the same incentives brought by excursion trains from every section within a radius of fifty miles or more indicate an unusual out and in-pouring of people to take in the widely heralded and undoubtedly rarely big and attractive street parade of the Christy Bros., big five ring trained wild animal shows.

Besides the standard gay, glittering and spectacular pageant offerings characteristic of the bigger circuses, there are announced uncommon pompous and historical additions among which the Oriental and military sections will command unusual attention and are striking innovations. The former is a regally majestic and rich reproduction of the gorgeous State Durbar at Delhi, in which the native princes, potentates and other notabilities of all India received and did homage to the British Viceroy, making the occasion one of indescribably ostentatious and lavish display of priceless jewels and costumes. The show in question has the huge elephants superb horses costly trappings, people and paraphernalia, requisite to appropriately perpetuate the event. In the military section of the parade will be found matter of unusual and striking historical interest; by the appearance of representatives armed and costumed exactly as were the heroes who fought under Washington. The show exhibits here Wednesday, May 10.

The biggest and most pretentious spectacular offering ever produced under canvas will be an attractive feature this year. It is an important Biblical episode of "Noah and the Ark." In this most delightful and educational production over five hundred people and animals are seen with a classical ballet and a big and attractive chorus of singers. Trained pigeons and other features are introduced. There will be a free street parade at 11:30 on the morning of the exhibition.

Tombs of Distant Times

The world's oldest stone buildings are reported to have been discovered near the famous pyramids of Sakkarah, about fifteen miles south of Cairo. They are two royal tomb chapels of the third Egyptian dynasty, about 4,000 B. C.

Built in a style differing in almost every respect from what is known as Egyptian architecture, the chapels are believed to have been the burial places of princesses or queens. Fragments of gravestones of royal princesses are said to have been found by archeologists who have been digging on the site.

MEMORIAL DAY

Of all the days in the patriotic calendar of America, Decoration day is the one full to overflowing with tenderness and love, and its sacredness and significance become more and more manifest as the years go by.

The memorial exercises all over our broad land, in memory of the soldier dead of all our wars, attest the fact that the great, loyal heart of America is still ready and true in its appreciation of the real worth of those whose lives have been freely offered on its sacrificial altars from Bunker Hill to Flanders Field, where fifty thousand crosses mark the last resting places of our fathers, sons, brothers and sisters.

On behalf of those who sleep in Flanders Field, Lieutenant Colonel John McCrea wrote the following inspiring "APPEAL":

In Flanders fields the poppies grow
Between the crosses row on row
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing fly,
Scarcely heard amid the guns below.

We are dead, short days ago
We lived felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, but now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch, be yours to lift it high;
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, the poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

This appeal inspired Charles B. Galbreath, of Columbus, secretary of the Ohio Archaeological society, to indite the wonderful, earnest "PROMISE", as follows:

In Flanders fields the cannon booms
And stifled fashions light the gloom,
While up above, like eagles, fly
The fierce destroyers of the sky;
With stains the earth wherein you lie
Is redder than the poppy bloom,
In Flanders fields.

Sleep on ye brave, The shrieking shell
The quaking trench, the startled yell
The fury of the battle hell
Shall wake you not, for all is well,
Sleep peacefully, for all is well.

Your flaming torch aloft we bear,
With burning heart and oath we swear
To keep the faith, to fight it thru,
To crush the foe or sleep with you
In Flanders fields.

This prophetic promise was answered by Joseph A. Clark in his beautiful poem, "FULFILLMENT":

In Flanders fields the poppies grow,
'Tis quiet 'mid the sunset glow,
The larks are singing, far on high
Above the crosses as they fly,
A requiem to those below.

Sleep on, ye brave, who gave your all
The shrieking shell, the bugle call
No more shall wake you from your rest
In Flanders fields.

The flaming torch aloft we bore
We've kept the faith, The battle o'er,
The foe is crushed, We've fought it thru
Now, rest in peace, God be with you
Who lie asleep where poppies score
In Flanders fields.

As for the brave Boys in Blue who fought in the Civil war, America can never give them just due, but all our people will always hold them in grateful remembrance. Soon "taps" will be sounded for the last survivor of that great struggle, but it can never be forgotten that they preserved the Union when it was threatened by foes from within.

"The time shall end their fame shall last
Who freed the bond to free;
They saved the hope of ages past
And ages yet to be."

It is sixty years since soldiers in the War of the Rebellion were mustered out of service. They were the citizen soldiery of the United States, mere boys most of them, who stood for a principle, a Divine instrument. The boy of 20 has become a white-haired, old man. In a few years the Grand Army of the Republic will be a matter of history and memory, to be maintained by the American Legion as an example in patriotism for generations to come.

There are fast passing on, the Blue and Gray
Where drums never sound at the breaking of day,
Nor bugles blow forth the loud reveille
To awaken the sleep of the Blue and the Gray.
The picket line, the death guards that long picked line,
And takes from each soldier his last counter sign.
The call is up yonder, and now one by one
They are passing—these heroes of musket and gun.
Akk etashed at snail etalon shrd
God himself has certainly had the American continent in His keeping for some wise purpose; an unseen hand seems to have guided our destiny and kept us free from the foreign entanglements of which Washington warned his countrymen. And the same unseen guidance has made of free America the Polar star of hope for the burden bearers of the world.

The country is safe so long as it gives its highest honors to lofty patriotism.

Rubbing It In

"I ain't going to take my children to the circus no more!" declared Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge.

"Then you think it is detrimental to their morals?" asked the presiding elder.

"None; but tuther day at Mauck & Mauckenfuss' Consolidated Museum, Equestrianism and Hippolympiad in mighty union with Dockerell's Parisian Circus and Sanger's English Menagerie, when the old clown came out and begun to cut up his durn foolishness all of my smaller kids yelled, 'There's paw! There's paw!'"—Kansas City Star.

DEFENSE WEAPON
IS THEIR COLORHow Some Animals Are Protected From Enemies.

To compare the speed, agility and craftiness of the coyote or the mountain lion with the young sheep or the fawn of the deer, is to wonder at the manner in which these almost defenseless little animals ever live long enough to grow up.

But are they defenseless? Not so defenseless as they look, observes the Kansas City Star. They are short on teeth, claws and ferocity, but in common with many other animals which must depend on something other than fighting ability in order to exist they are long on the art of concealment.

It is easy to see how the quail or the grouse, by crouching in the grass which it so closely resembles, can escape detection by the eye. To some animals, such as the snowshoe rabbits, nature has given a protection of color which changes as the color of the surroundings change. The mountain sheep is especially adept at concealment. These animals, living on treeless mountain peaks, closely resemble in color the gray rocks which surround them. A mother sheep, by placing the lamb in a hollow among the rocks and nosing a few pieces of loose rock over it, effectively evades most enemies.

A guide of the Rocky mountains told of having watched a ewe conceal her lamb by simply nosing a stick of wood across the little fellow as he lay on the rocks. A few minutes later a coyote passed that way with his nose to the ground, following the trail of the ewe. He never got a trace of scent at the place the lamb was left, and passed within a few feet of it.

This same man told of having seen coyotes pass close to fawns in the same manner. He said that the mothers seem to have perfect confidence that the fawns would not be caught by coyotes, wandering away and leaving them apparently helpless in the woods.

The case of the birds which are protected by coloration and that of the lambs, however, seems only to partly solve the problem, since some of their enemies hunt by scent. In the case of the lambs one enemy, the eagle, uses his eyes, while another, the coyote, uses his nose. What is the protection of these creatures against the scenting enemies.

It is well known that the quail can to a certain degree control its scent by tightly compressing its feathers in time of danger. And as to the sheep and the fawns, this woodsman, who has spent his life observing these animals, believes that until they become of a certain age they leave no scent. His instances of the coyotes passing so close to the hidden young of the deer and the sheep, things which he has witnessed, seem to prove this.

Desert Air Service
A project for the beginning in July, 1925, of a cross-desert air service from Ramleh, Palestine, to Basrah, Iraq, as a link in the London-to-Bombay route, is under discussion in London. The plan proposes to cover the 900 miles between the two cities in one day, with a brief halt in Baghdad. The cost for passenger transportation is estimated at £20 (roughly, $100).

Marvelous Sea Plants

One of the most thoroughly equipped sea-going expeditions ever organized is studying the mysterious Sargasso sea, originally discovered by Columbus. This remarkable sea is covered by a huge gathering of seaweeds, a floating mass of vegetable growth extending for nearly 250,000 square miles, around which the North Atlantic slowly revolves. Numerous air bladders, like small berries, keep the plants afloat. Seaweeds thrive chiefly in the 400-fathom limit—within 600 feet of the surface—but small and almost invisible forms are found everywhere in the ocean. Round British coasts a primitive variety is seen in the bright green and hair-like "crow-silks"; but no essential difference exists between the small weeds and the immense growths found in Pacific waters. Thicker than the trunk of a large tree, the gigantic stems of seaweed near Tierra del Fuego attain the astonishing length of 400 feet. Huge fronds resemble the spreading leaves of tropical palms. There are extensive sub-ocean forests of kelp, and floating islands of weeds swarming with live animals often measuring 8 feet from base to tip. Seaweeds multiply chiefly by means of spores, but near land the waves render unique assistance.

Trained Mouse

John Tierney, a night watchman in a factory in Geneva, N. Y., claims to have been successful in training a mouse to come when called, the call being the rattle of his dinner pail at midnight when he gets ready for his dinner. When the mouse made its first appearance he gave it some bits of food, next night he rattled the lid against the pail and in a short time the mouse appeared and was fed, and each night since he has found the mouse appearing shortly after the dinner rattle was sounded, so he claims a mouse may be trained to do a certain thing and repeat it over and over if one appeals to its appetite and is patient.

AMUSEMENTS

Bebe Daniels' first Paramount starring picture, "Dangerous Money," at the Met theater, once again proves the truth of the old saying that "money is the root of all evil." As long as Adele Clark was a miserable little drudge in her aunt's dingy boarding house, she was contented to bask in the sunshine of Tim Sullivan's love. The minute Fortune favored her, Adele's troubles began and her romance with Tim received a rude shock.

"Dangerous Money" which Julie Herne adapted from Robert Herrick's gripping novel, "Clark's Field," is a study in vivid contrasts and picturesque backgrounds, ranging from the Brooklyn waterfront to a villa in Italy. All those subtle touches of humor and pathos that were ingrained in the story have been cleverly brought out in the photoplay, and the result is a picture, full of heart interest, that is bound to appeal to the overwhelming majority of film fans.

Miss Daniels gives a performance little short of marvelous. Her sincerity, vivacity and personality are invaluable assets and stamp her as one of the most talented, if newest, of our screen luminaries.

When it comes to playing the part of a young and handsome Irish contractor there is none who fits the bill more admirably than Tom Moore, and Tom proves it by giving a characteristically fine performance. William Powell, as the suave villain, and Dolores Costello, round out an excellent supporting cast.

Canadian's Feat Makes Marathon Look Simple

Marathon races get their name from the feat of the great Greek runner, Pheidippides, who carried the news of the victory over the Persians from Marathon to Athens. That was about 26 miles, and besides the battle being the turning point in the history of Europe, it was made forever dramatic by the fact that the runner dropped dead on finishing his journey.

That was a mild journey compared with a Canadian episode which has been unearthed by W. J. Healy and described in the Winnipeg Tribune. Jean Baptiste Lagimodiere was a resident at Fort Garry (now Winnipeg) in 1815, when the growing hostilities between the Hudson's Bay company and the Northwest company led to a crisis which called for quick action. Lagimodiere was a man of thirty-five, whose fifteen years in the West had made him a noted hunter and coureur de bois, when Colin Robertson, who was in charge of the stockaded stronghold of the Selkirk settlement at Fort Douglas, asked him to deliver a letter to Lord Selkirk in Montreal.

Lagimodiere set out on foot with instructions to carry the letter as swiftly as possible to Lord Selkirk, informing him of the danger and asking him for help. It was a journey of 1,800 miles through much wilderness, which in some parts was made still more dangerous by the presence of Northwest company scouts. The runner set out, therefore, in the direction of Pembina, as if on a hunting trip, and making a wide circle he traveled by Warroad, Rainy River and Fort William, thence to Detroit. East of Detroit he was overtaken by a mail carrier to whom, being far from the fur traders' capital, he told his mission. The mail carrier then offered to take him all the way to Montreal, provided he were allowed to deliver the letter to Selkirk.

Jean Baptiste told that generous and enterprising mail carrier that he had promised to carry the letter himself to Lord Selkirk and that he would do it unless he died on the way. Then he jumped out of the mail carrier's sleigh and continued his journey on foot.

Montreal was reached on New Year's eve, or two months after the journey was started, and Lady Selkirk joined her husband in the warm welcome to the hardy messenger. Lagimodiere started back in a couple of days with a reassuring message, but near Fort William he was taken prisoner by a party of Indians on the lookout for him on the request of the Northwesterns. He was held for some months and released only when Fort William was captured by Lord Selkirk. The massacre of Seven Oaks, a battle between the forces of the warring fur trading companies, occurred that summer at Winnipeg, but peace followed and Lagimodiere lived until 1855.

GIFTS THAT LAST

Double Apple Crop

A freak of nature has been discovered in M. N. Cook's apple tree at Springfield, Mo. He has harvested two crops of apples from the tree this year. The first crop was gathered in July. Two weeks later the tree appeared in full bloom and on Armistice day the second crop was picked. The apples are of the yellow transparent variety. —Washington Star.

Rare Joker

"Some one entered my room last night and stole eleven poems that I had just completed," stated Tennyson J. Daft, the versatile versificationist.
"Whom do you suspect of playing such a joke on himself?" asked F. Fuller Gloom, the paltry pessimist. —Kansas City Star.

STAR MANY TIMES
BRIGHTER THAN SUN

S Doradus Most Luminous
Object in Universe.

Cambridge, Mass.—A star 600,000 times as bright as the sun and more than 185,000,000 miles in diameter has been classified by the Harvard university observatory, according to a bulletin just issued by Director Harlow Shapley. This star, which is known in the catalogues as S Doradus, is the most luminous now known—possibly the brightest object in the entire universe.

S. Doradus is located in the large Magellanic cloud in the constellation Dorado near the south pole of the heavens and is visible only to observers south of the equator. It is a variable star, ranging in apparent magnitude from 8.2 to 9.4 an increase or decrease of slightly more than three times in brightness, and is invisible to the naked eye, although visible in telescopes of small aperture.

Beats Sun 600,000 Times.

Its faintness to an observer on the earth is due to its enormous distance—more than 100,000 light years—and the investigations of Harvard observatory have determined that its true brightness or mean absolute magnitude, is minus 8.9, or 14.5 magnitudes brighter than the sun. This means that if it were located where the sun is, it would shine with 600,000 times the sun's brightness.

Photographs of S Doradus on a series of Harvard observatory plates, extending from 1889 to 1924, have been measured, and as a result of these studies Director Shapley has classified the star as "a supergiant variable." Though probably not so large in linear diameter as some of the giant red stars, such as Betelgeuse and Antares, recently measured through the interferometer at Mt. Wilson, S Doradus is much brighter and hotter than the giant red stars and is intrinsically the most brilliant star yet classified in the universe.

Loses Trillions of Tons a Second.

According to the latest theories of stellar evolution a star or sun loses mass in the act of giving off radiation. Director Shapley calculates that S Doradus radiates energy at such a terrific rate that it loses two and one-half trillion tons of mass a second. This rate may have been exceeded temporarily by one or two of the novae, or "blaze stars," that have flamed up in the sky only to fade away again, but it is not equaled by any other known object in the celestial vault.

As faint traces of nebulosity appear around S Doradus in long-time exposures, it is assumed to be a true member of the Magellanic cloud or star cluster in which it appears. This remarkable cluster was first observed by the navigator Andrea Corsali in 1516 and was named in honor of Magellan, the explorer.

Whopper, All Right,
Believe It or Not

Uncle Hi says: "These here liars' contests make me tired. It reminds me of a blacksmith I used to know when I was a youngster who always boasted of his veracity but on occasion could tell some whoppers.

"He told about a contract he had to build a large number of A-harrows. Every farmer had one in them days. But he had so much to do that he had to hire another blacksmith on the other side of town to make the teeth. Finally it came time to deliver the teeth. Blacksmith number two was no weaklin' so he put them into a bed-tick and the tick was nearly full. With an awful heave he swung the load onto his back and started down the walk. And, say, how he ruined that walk, for he sank through the bricks to his knees with every step, so he had to set them down. The village teamster had to make two loads of 'em, believe it or not."—W. H. R., in Prairie Farmer.

State Buys First Penn
Charter, 253 Years Old

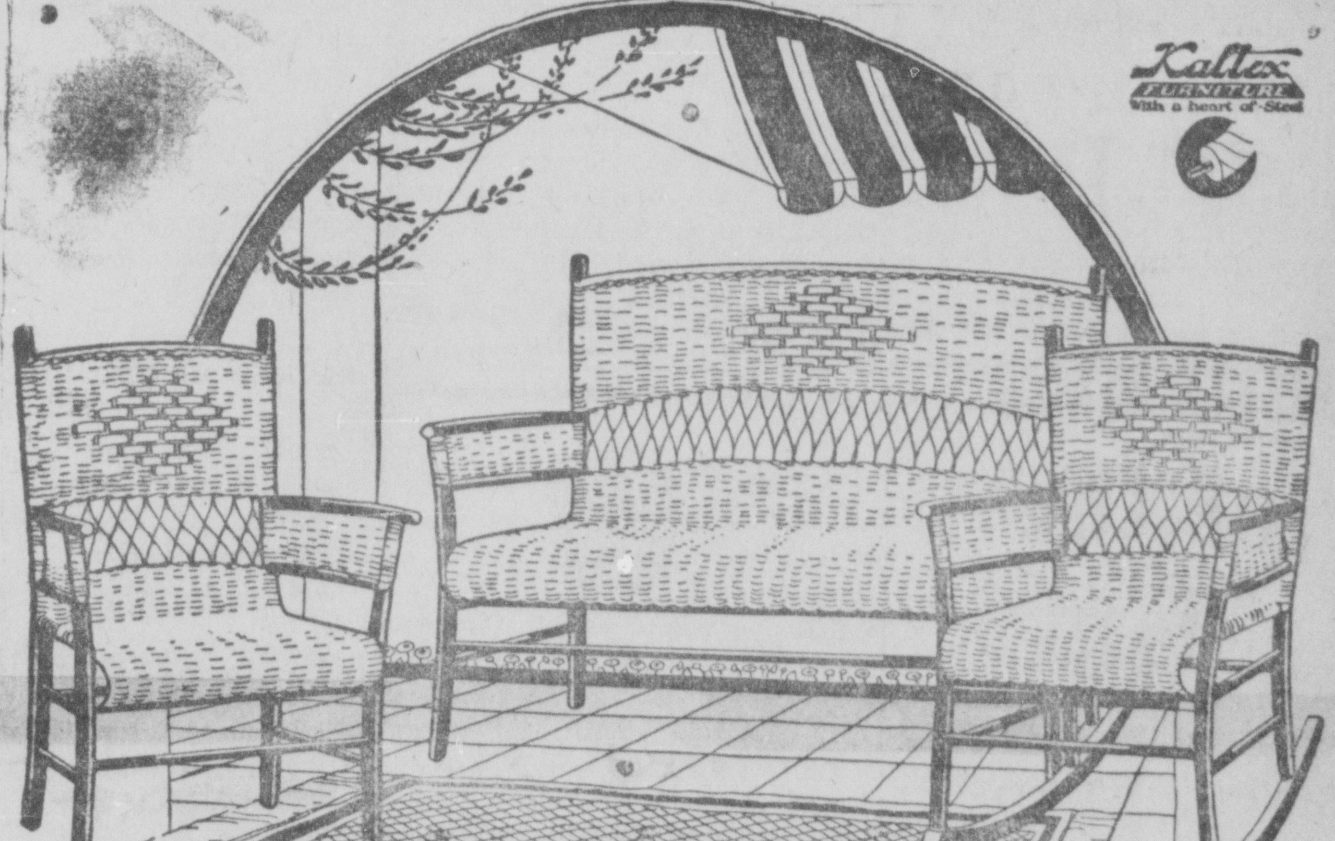

Harrisburg, Pa.—More than two centuries after it was drawn by the founder of Pennsylvania the William Penn Charter of Liberties was restored to the hands of the people. The presentation was accompanied by one of the most brilliant functions in the history of the state.

The document, drawn up at William Penn's instance in the office of his lawyer in London, in 1682, concluded an arrangement with the crown for the establishment of the province of Pennsylvania. It was signed by Penn and others in the Society of Friends, April 25 that year, Penn submitted the charter to his new colony in the fall, and it was accepted by the people of the first assembly in Chester, and continued in force until drafting and signing of a second charter on April 2.

The first charter was returned to Penn, who took it to England when he returned in 1684. It remained in the family for some time, but finally passed into the hands of Gabriel Wells, a collector of New York, who sold it to the people of Pennsylvania at a nominal advance over the price he paid.

The purchase was arranged by a Philadelphia newspaper, which raised a fund of $50,000. The document now is in the state library at Harrisburg.

PECULIAR QUALITIES OF SPANISH RIVER

Count Pedro Maura y Sereda said at a dinner at the Spanish embassy: "Madrid is on the Manzanares river. The Manzanares probably contains less water than any river in the world, yet no stream has ever been so joked about.

"A German said it was the best river he had ever seen, as it was navigable either by automobile or on foot.

"Ferdinand II used to declare that once, when a visiting prince desired to take a walk along the river bed, it had to be watered first to lay the dust.

"Count Romanones said the Manzanares was the best river in the world to dry washing in.

"Once a young woman from Seville grew faint at a bullfight, and they brought her a glass of water, but she waved it aside and murmured: "Give it to the Manzanares; it needs it more than I."—Buffalo Courier.

New Idea Is Tractor That Walks Like Man

A full-sized tractor that walks has been invented by a Moravian. Instead of rear wheels, the vehicle is equipped with a pair of legs and moves either forward or backward. In front are two wheels that are used for steering purposes. The car travels at the speed of a galloping horse, but it can be made to go faster by increasing the length of the legs, says Popular Science Monthly. Like other types of wheel-less cars, the new vehicle is mainly intended for traction on otherwise impracticable ground, especially for agricultural purposes. While a wheel drive has to deal with all obstacles found on the ground, the walking drive only strikes about 20 per cent of those actually existing. It also will draw a plow with three blades fitted with runners, so as to pass over the most impracticable ground. The mechanical legs move quite as smoothly as those of a living animal and readily pass any obstacle that is encountered.

Recently a German inventor produced a walking automobile. Instead of wheels, this queer vehicle has four legs, which propel it over all kinds of places inaccessible to the ordinary car. It is run by a motor.
